1. Begin with a brief, clear statement of your research topic and your research question(s). What do you want to find out and why? What is the puzzle that you are trying to solve? Your research question may change over the course of the year, but it is still good to have a question at the beginning of your research to guide your thinking and data collection. Give a brief indication of what kind of research has already been done on this topic to provide a context for understanding its anthropological importance.
2. Discuss your preliminary plans for going about the research. What method or methods will you use? What are some potential sources of data?
3. What are some books or articles that you have read/plan to read on your topic?
4. If appropriate, make clear the particular perspective you may bring to the project/thesis.

MY FACULTY MENTOR, _____, HAS APPROVED THIS PROPOSAL AND AGREES TO HAVE ME ENROLL IN ANT 194H UNITS UNDER THEIR NAME.
